FOREWORD

The graduates of 1952 present in these pages the picture of their life at Southmont High School. Here you will find an account of the board of education and the administration who had the responsibility of guiding school affairs; of the faculty who directed and encouraged our intellectual growth; of the students who shared our problems and our pleasures; of the activities which gave us an opportunity to develop qualities of self-reliance and leadership; and of the sports from which we acquired the fundamentals of fair play.

The Board of Education

Mr. E. H. Hollenback started his fourth year as president and his ninth as a member of the school board in 1951. Mr. Burgess Shaffer has been on the board since April, 1947 and is serving his second term as vice-president. The present treasurer, Mr. George Buchanan, has been on the board since 1939. Mr. Thomas Kern, a member since 1937, has served as president and secretary. Mr. Charles Zerby was elected to the group in November, 1946. Mrs. Sara Minor assumed the duties of board secretary in December, 1946.

Mrs. Sara Minor and Mr. Elliot Hollenback.

Grade Seven — Grade Eight

The seventh grade became adapted readily to "upstairs" procedures. The girls learned quickly to react to the gymnastic command "Right face, one, two," and the boys "took to the plan" for craftsmanship in shop.

Under the direction of Mrs. Davis the baby-grade thespians showed their dramatic abilities in "Dave Harding Wakes Up," which was presented for American Education Week.

The "active eighth graders" elected the following officers for the school year of 1951-1952: president, James Quirk; vice-president, Patricia Williams; secretary, Judith Bowers, and treasurer, Dorothy Denk. The Student Council representatives were Donald Burnich and Donald Reininger.

Junior High activities saw many eighth graders take leading roles.

The Freshmen

The class of '55 selected their motto, "They conquer who believe they can"; their colors, dark blue and light blue; and their flower, the white rose.

The class decided to begin its money-making activities this year. Working in groups they collected scrap paper from various sections of the borough and thus started to build up their treasury.

Many of the boys showed their skill in football and basketball while the girls showed theirs in G.A.A. Most of the girls belong to F.H.A. and many of the students tried out their acting ability by being members of the Junior Dramatics Club. Six girls from the class were chosen as Junior High Cheerleaders.

The Sophomores

1951-52 proved a successful year for the "gay, young, sophomores." As their class project they presented a movie, "Phantom of the Opera." They also sponsored a jim-jam, which netted plenty of profit for the treasury.

The class of '54 chose the carnation as their flower; red and white as their colors; and "We build the ladder by which we climb" as their motto.

The Juniors

Looking forward to a senior year of financial need, the "dignified Juniors" started on the road to financial stability by selling candy. Natalie Dunkle, as chairman, Gloria Good, and Richard Livingston headed this drive for funds.

In the spring, the Juniors, not letting down on the annual tradition, held the Prom for the Seniors.

The class colors are green and white and the yellow rose is their flower. Sticking to their motto, "If we rest, we rust," the Juniors closed a very successful year.

ACTIVITIES

Student Council

The eighteen members of Student Council worked this year, erecting the "Stay-off-the-grass" signs, auditing the treasurers' books, approving the secretaries' minutes, sponsoring noon-day dancing, "clamping down" on tardiness, electing cheerleaders, and carrying out many other projects beneficial to the students.

By joining the National Association of Student Councils, our organization affiliated itself with the student-governing bodies of other high schools throughout the nation. Student Council received copies of "Student Life" and other publications of the N.A.S.C.

A regular, bi-weekly meeting period helped to make this year's Student Council more alert to the problems of the students.

Panorama '52

"Nobody knows the work I've done nobody knows but me." That was the wail of each of the eight "Panorama" staff members. Nobody knew, nobody but Miss Key, the adviser, and the other seven staff members, and Lillian Milkovich, the typist.

Together, the hard-working seniors conscientiously tried to produce a yearbook that would equal the standards set by previous "Panorama" staffs. The pushing force was David Lanphear, the editor. Merle Supowitz put in untiring work as business manager. As faculty editor, Edith Dishong had difficulty arranging the teachers' life histories in the available space. Jane Weisel was the senior editor. Connie Reiser described the various class activities. The art and feature editor was Larry Gallucci. Charles Wigmore told of the sports events and Mitzi McDowell reported the club projects.

Panorama Junior

Volume twenty of "Panorama Junior" assumed the duty of presenting for the student body not only school news, but local, state, and national news, as well, in the form of a student debate, "Pro and Con."

The 1951-1952 Press Club also provided a publicity chairman, Richard Livingston, whose assignment it was to send Southmont news to the Johnstown newspapers for publication.

Editor-in-Chief Maxine Cass and adviser Miss Key directed the proceedings of the club with the help of editing-staff members Natalie Dunkle, Connie Reiser, Mitzi MacDowell, and Jane Weisel.

Key Club

The boys in Key Club certainly did work this year! It seems that they must have started each activity when the previous one was only half-completed.

To raise the money for their charitable activities, the boys washed and sunonized cars, sold book covers, and sponsored "Key Klub Kapers." The proceeds from these projects were spent to give a needy family a "Merry Christmas," and to help the community.

The boys gave of their time also. They marched in the Armistice Day Parade, collected books for the institution at Torrance, and collected clothing for people in the Kansas flood area.

Hi-Y Club

In spite of the small membership of this year's club, the Hi-Y group was very active. At the beginning of the year the club staged a tennis tournament among its members. At Thanksgiving the boys collected canned goods for the Christian Home. Then, following a precedent, the club brought to Southmont a highly interesting entertainer who was enjoyed by all. Two delegates went to the Hi-Y Club Council meetings every Monday and brought back material which was discussed in the meetings.

Y-Teens

September meant initiation of new members for Y-Teens. October saw the hay wagon arrive at the school, ready for the moon-lit ride out to "Dunnies." In November the boys had to use that "shoe leather express" to get away from Sadie Hawkins. December brought snow and Y-Teen gifts for a needy family. For February and March a skating party and a rummage sale were planned to make money for the May mother-daughter banquet.

"Meet Corliss Archer"

The Seniors, under the skillful direction of Miss Lambert, presented "Meet Corliss Archer" as their class play.

Corliss, as played by Maxine Cass, was highly amusing as she involved Dexter, Charles Sciotto; his parents, Becky Schmutz and Merle Supowitz; and her parents, Delores Gilliland and David Lanphear, in a diary which Corliss and a friend, Nancy Miller, wrote for fun. Edith Dishong, who played her Cousin Agnes, having read the diary by mistake, was horrified. A great deal of explaining was needed to untangle the situation.

Other characters in the play were portrayed by John Geis, Lillian Milkovich, Connie Reiser, Mitzi McDowell, Jane Weisel, and James Mead.

Larry Gallucci was director of tickets and publicity.

Music—Speech

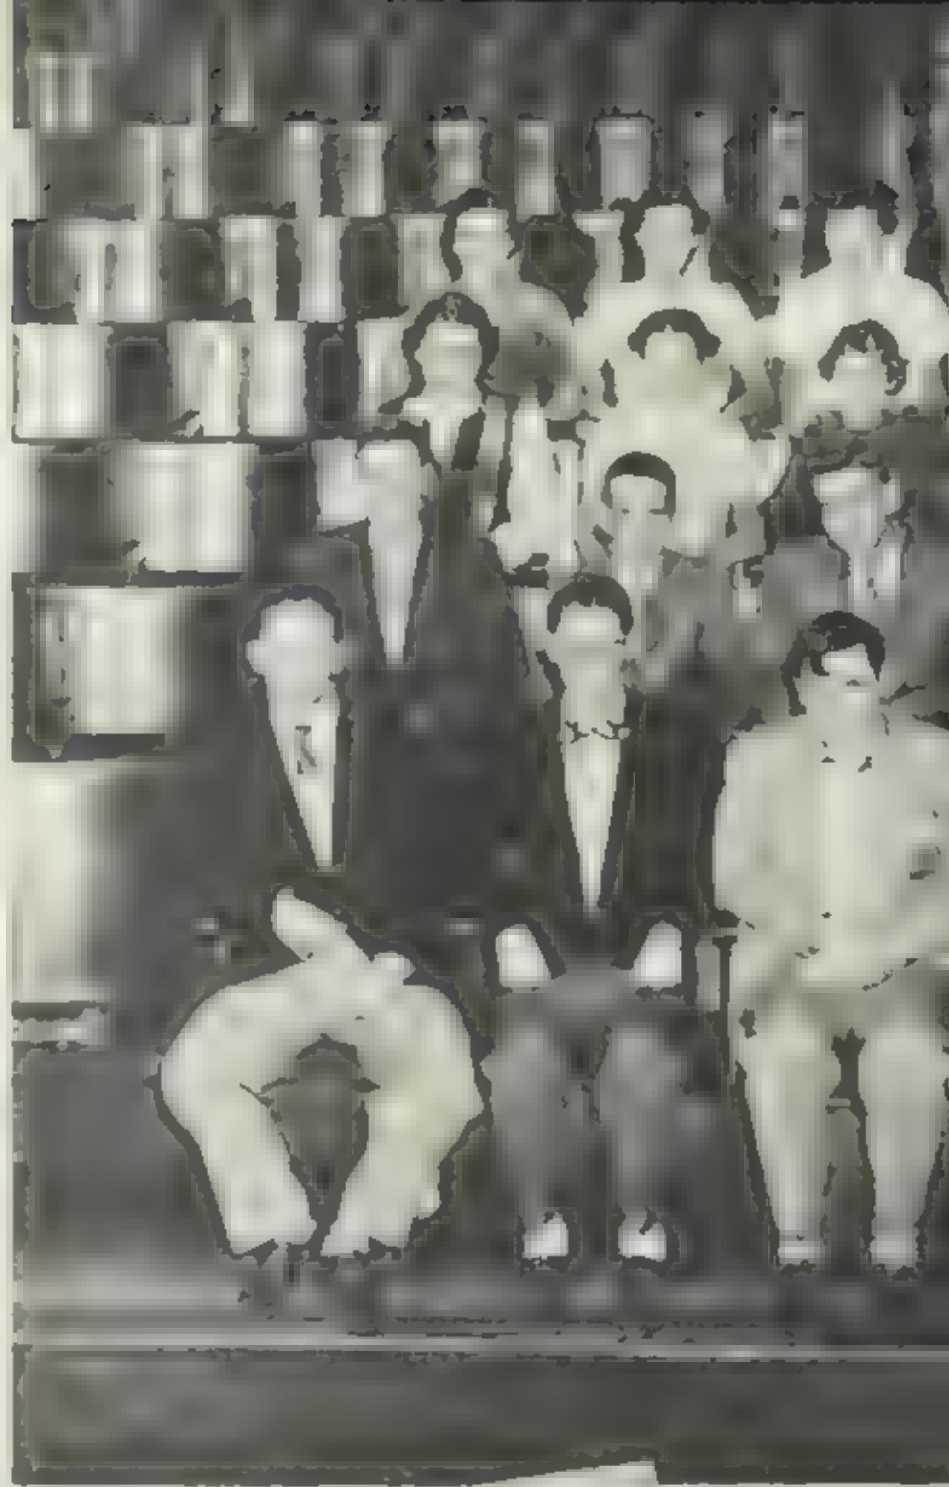

"Fortissimo, ladies! Gentlemen, please keep together!" Such was Mr. Gotwald's familiar cry to the choral groups as they rehearsed during the year.

Every Wednesday, an ambitious group, known as Mixed Chorus, met in the auditorium, and started the long process of preparing various selections for concert use. Monday nights Mixed Ensemble worked on contributions to the year's concerts.

Girls' Chorus and Boys' Chorus practiced songs which they later combined in Mixed Chorus; they also perfected individual chorus numbers.

Along with speech contestants, there were also representatives from the music groups in the P.M.F.L. event.

Cambria County Music and Forensic League competition again was held at Southmont High this year. District competitions were held at State College and the state competitions were held at Harrisburg.

As in years past, Southmont students showed interest in participating. In forensics, Phyllis Haluska entered poetry and Natalie Dunkle entered serious declamation. Soprano solo competition was entered by Lillian Milkovich, Marilyn Mitchell, and Clare George. Mixed Ensemble competed in its respective field.

Future Homemakers—Junior Dramatics

Under the supervision of Mrs. Redfoot and the leadership of the officers, president, Carol Cover; vice-president, Winifred McDowell; secretary, Susie James; and treasurer, Judy Bowers, F.H.A. had an active year. The social events of the club were a covered dish supper and a spring party. The club also fixed a Christmas basket for a needy family.

Junior Dramatics Club started the year by initiating sixteen new members. The members then formulated and adopted a club constitution.

The programs at each meeting were varied, since the program committee divided the membership into teams of two or three members each. Every team was responsible for the program for a meeting.

Cheerleaders

"Tess" and her squad, aided by Mrs. Davis, had a very successful year. They entered the annual Cheerleading Contest and made an excellent showing with their cheer, "Zip Zor." The girls also played an active part in the forming of the new district cheerleading organization.

The group made an attractive appearance in their blue skirts and gold sweaters as they led the student body in both new and old cheers

Football

Despite a dismal showing in the "won and lost" column, the Golden Tigers showed to their fans exciting, wide open play this year. Hampered by many major injuries to key players, the Tigers limped home with one win and seven defeats. The Tigers, avenging last year's beating, mauled Franklin 12-0 for their only victory of the campaign.

Next year's team will contain twelve lettermen since there were only six seniors on the squad. Four out of five managers will also be on duty next year. With a year's experience behind them, the future Tigers show definite promise of developing into one of the districts' better teams.

Basketball

This year's edition of the Southmont Golden Tigers definitely did not have to take a back seat to any other Tiger team. Although not having the height of last year's District Six champs, the Bengals molded a fast, aggressive style of play.

The Tigers also set a new record by winning four Southern Cambria championships in a row. This year, after winning the championship of the first half by defeating Dale in a playoff, the Bengals lost the second half. The lads of Coach Krouse, however, ended an exciting league season by beating Beaverdale by two points to win the championship.

Girls' Athletics

The Girls' Athletic Association was made up of girls from the ninth through twelfth grades. While the weather was warm and enjoyable, the girls went outdoors and played volleyball and mush ball under the very able direction of Mrs. Davis.

During the winter, the girls played volleyball and intramural basketball in the high school gymnasium.

SENIORS

The Senior Class of 1952

"306, at last!" was the cry of the seniors. "Yes, after eleven long years we're here!"

No sooner were they inside 306 when the whirl began. First came football season in which six seniors earned their letters. While they were busy earning them, the girls were active in G.A.A. At the close of football season came the senior play, "Meet Corliss Archer." Throughout the fall the seniors sold Christmas cards to boost their treasury.

Adding to the whirl were senior pictures, yearbook pictures, college announcements, measurements for caps and gowns, and when spring came—Baccalaureate and Graduation!
